THE CANTERBURY CROSS

The Canterbury Cross

The Cross of Canterbury rests upon the upper left field. Symbolic of our name and ancient origin, the cross is traced to 500 A.D., uncovered in the great Cathedral at Canterbury England.

Crux Cantaburiensis

Crux Cantaburiensis in loco superiore et sinistro restat. Signum nominis nostri antiquaeque originis, crux reperta in ecclesia maxima Cantaburiensi in Britannia, ad annum DL Domini nostri relata est.

La Croix de Canterbury

La Croix de Canterbury se place à gauche. Symbole de notre nom et de notre origine ancienne, la croix remonte jusqu'à l'origine de 500 A.D. où elle était découverte dans la grande cathédrale en Angleterre à Canterbury.

THE EDGE OF THE UNIVERSE

On the second day of spring, the winds whistled, March icicles tinkled, and the thermometer took a nosedive. Nevertheless, undaunted board members and 8th graders from the class of '83 broke ground (or rather snow, depending on how technical one wants to be) for Canterbury High School...and yet another dream rises in our continuing tradition of scholarly excellence. We build upon the past and rejoice in the present, but most of all we will watch our High School rise with the promise of tomorrow: a complete Canterbury community of K-12.

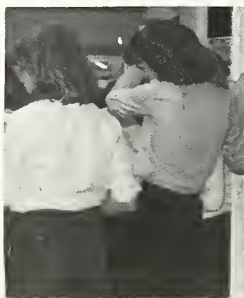

October homecoming brought alumni, friends, students and parents together into one huge gala in celebration of all that Canterbury means to all of us. As the first nip of winter cooled the air and crimson leaves drifted about us, we fought the good fight one more time in soccer, stuffed ourselves with pizza, scared ourselves in the haunted house, and tried again and again in the cakewalk, and ended the evening as the Rubber Band and the Beach Boys serenaded us into the night.

HOMECOMING: COMING HOME

Around the tree we joined together, large and small, young and old, in celebration of the joyous Christmas season. About the tree, smelling heavily of pine and festooned with student mementos, we gathered and we sang and the halls echoed with the brotherhood of Canterbury, in a celebration of love.

SCIENCE FAIR

Lessons from mousetraps, paper planes

By BILL ZLATOS
Of The News-Sentinel

At Canterbury School, 5601 Covington Road, students may never learn how to build a better mousetrap, but they're learning how to build better mousetrap-powered cars and paper airplanes.

Canterbury's first mousetrap car race and paper airplane contest — and perhaps the only one in the city — were part of the school's science fair Tuesday. The fair featured 187 exhibits. First-place winners are to take part in the regional science fair April 16 at IU-Purdue Fort Wayne.

Lyrics by

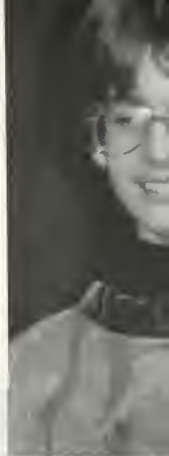

MARSHALL BARER

Directed by Joan Stanger

Sets by Lindy Demyan-Lehr

Music played by Marilee Porter

Once upon a time there was a kingdom without a princess. The King (Jamie Rea) was a mute, whose every word was translated by his Jester (Heather Hamrick). The Jester and the Minstrel (Jonathan Ashton) entertained the Court, ruled over by the Queen (Renata Bauman) and her son Prince Dauntless the Drab (David Andrew). Sir Harry (Sean Eviston) leaves behind his bride-to-be, Lady Larkin (Julie Lentz) to find a true Princess of royal blood, Winifred (Valerie Keoun). Winifred swims the moat, proclaims herself shy, and passes the queen's test. At last the prince can marry, the kingdom rejoices, the king asserts himself and they all live (as in any fairy tale) happily ever after!!

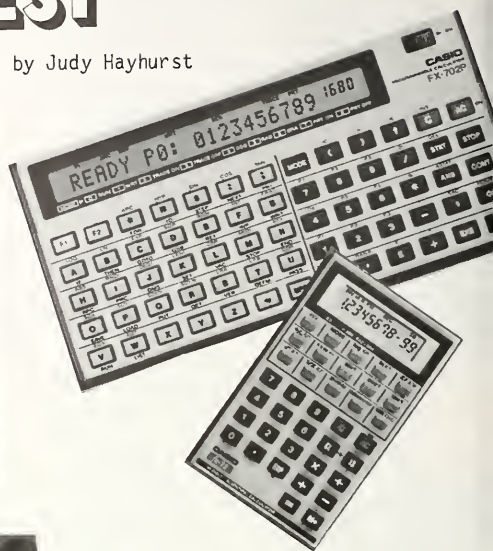

It's a Hit!

7 at Canterbury win science awards

Seven Canterbury School students received awards at the recent Indiana Junior Academy of Science conference at the University of Notre Dame. Heather Hamrick placed first; Stan Clark, second; and Debbie Parrott, third, for the best posters of their science projects. Sean Evison won first place in the airplane competition. Aron Dellinger placed second for his mousetrap car; Renata Bauman, second for best science-fiction story; and Stan Clark, third, for his story. In addition, Chris Moses presented a paper on holography, and Debbie Parrott presented one on the interaction of metals and nonmetals.

JAPANESE HISTORY DAY

With the help of Mrs. Pence and Mrs. Smith, we wandered the Earth, visited new lands, and even brought some here, right into Canterbury classrooms. We tasted exotic foods, assumed the clothing and manner of other cultures, and gained an understanding much deeper than the printed page, as we learned to walk in the footsteps of others who share this planet with us.

Friendship

No matter where we go or what we pretend, a part of our past remains with us.

SILVERY IMAGES OF THE WORLD

Books

Inside a book,
there are many pages,
much knowledge awaits discovery
from this peaceful soul.
But also inside,
tiny voices talk to each other,
each taking its turn in order
Many times it panics,
when dropped.
Tiny voices cry out in terror.
It feels degraded, when marked in,
but relieved, when the dirt
is washed away.
It enjoys the fact of being read
but is sometimes
hated by an uninterested
person.
Many times it cries out to be read all one has to do is open it and get in on
the conversation.

Look into an idea
Raw, shapeless possibilities
float and converge.
Visions form before your eyes.
Those visions coalesce
They smooth, develop and grow
They become a force
to shape the world.

Behind My Third Eye

I see.....
The mythical creatures of yesterday,
today,
and always
The pegasus floating on silver wings
through the universe,
The dragon,
breathing incredulous fire.
And the yesterday when the world
was clean, free,
and people did not exist.
My third eye goes into the depths
of human feelings,
and has experienced them
all,
My eye can see the wisps of clouds, swirling on a perfect planet.
It can dream,
And it can come back to reality
My third eye knows everything.

Nebulus Nelwyn Nocker Would Not Clean Out Her Locker

Nebulus Nelwyn Nocker
Would not clean out her locker.
Grimy gym clothes, empty juice cans,
Little brother's matchbox vans.
Bologna sandwiches 3 months old,
Carrots and celery ready to mold,
Zillions of unused, untouched papers,
All sorts of slimy, crawling capers.
Pens, pencils, markers and all.
What would she do if this were to fall?

TRADITION

A Tradition: The Winged Dragon

The winged dragon, powerful, terrible, representative of the land, the past, will carry us into our future. Armed with knowledge, which is power, protected by it also, we advance upon our tomorrows.

Res tradito-Draco Alatus

Draco alatus, potens terribilisque atque exemplum terre et rerum gestarum, nos in futura nostra portabit. Nos quidem scientia quae potentia est armati atque defensi, in dies crastinas nostras ingredimur.

Une Tradition: Le Dragon Aile

Le dragon aile, puissant et terrible, représentant la terre - le passé, nous mènera dans le futur. Armé de la connaissance qui est le pouvoir, et protégé par lui aussi, nous avançons sur nos demains.
